Description:

Composite Box travel trailer shells are crafted from high-strength fiberglass composite materials with PU or XPS foam cores for superior thermal insulation and impact resistance. Lightweight construction eases towing, while corrosion-resistant design ensures long-lasting, low-maintenance performance. Featuring aluminum alloy chassis, customizable dimensions, layouts, and exteriors, these shells offer spacious, comfortable interiors—perfect for family camping, long-distance travel, and commercial RV conversions.

Features:

- High-strength fiberglass composite shell with foam insulation core.
- Lightweight design reduces towing strain and improves fuel efficiency.
- Excellent thermal insulation for year-round camping comfort.
- Corrosion-resistant and impact-proof for extended durability.
- Fully customizable dimensions, layouts, colors, and interior features.

Advantages:

- Significantly lighter than traditional steel or aluminum RV bodies, making towing easier, safer, and more fuel-efficient for a wide range of vehicles.
- Delivers outstanding all-season thermal comfort through high-efficiency PU/XPS insulation, maintaining stable interior temperatures in extreme hot or cold conditions.
- Provides exceptional long-term durability with corrosion resistance, impact strength, and minimal maintenance, ensuring reliable performance and reduced ownership costs over many years.
- Offers complete customization including structure, chassis type, interior layout, plumbing/electrical integration, and premium exterior finishes to create personalized, market-leading recreational vehicles.
